The cancer nobody talks about

Surviving bowel diseases

By CHARLES PELTON

THOUSAND OAKS — Bowel cancer used to be the cancer that no one liked to talk about. Now more and more people are talking. Bowel cancer — the nation's number two cancer killer — is the focus of this year's Cancer Awareness Week sponsored by the American Cancer Society in California. Cancer Awareness Week runs from April 4 to 10.

According to Emily Warden, a Thousand Oaks resident who is the communication director at the society's Alameda County unit, "Public awareness is crucial for early diagnosis and treatment. We are, for instance, much more conscious of cervical cancer than we were several years ago. Because women are getting more pap smears, the incidence of cervical cancer has dramatically decreased."

If bowel cancer victims detected their disease early, she said, the survival rate could climb remarkably high, to close to 75 or 80 percent. The Cancer Society is promoting free hidden bleeding and other tests to aid with early detection.

"It is vital for a victim to seek early treatment," Lillian Rabinowitz said. Rabinowitz, a Berkeley resident known as an organizer of the Grey Panthers in Northern California, was smitten with the disease late in 1978.

Plaza fracas: will it become pizza to go?

Hearing set for Wednesday

By GORDON RADDUE

EL CERRITO — As many as 4,000 people have signed petitions protesting a move by El Cerrito Plaza to replace the popular Kirby's restaurant complex with a Chuck E. Cheese pizza and video game parlor, the head of the protest drive says.

But city officials have responded with a letter written by assistant city manager Tom Sinclair, saying that El Cerrito has no authority or control over the lease of the property per se. The city's reply comes in the face of 250 protest letters to the City Council and the Planning Commission.

Kirsten Nelson, coordinator of the petition drive, said she will present the signatures to the Planning Commission April 6 when it reviews Pizza Time Theatre's application for a permit to operate the Chuck E. Cheese outlet.

In his letter, prepared at the request of the City Council, Sinclair explained the process involved in the filing of a use permit application and the duties and authority of the Planning Commission and City Council in acting on such applications.

Noting that Plaza land use long ago received the approval of both city agencies, Sinclair wrote that the Plaza owners — Homart Development Co. and C&R Developers Inc. — may lease their property "to any tenant who complies with the approved land use permit and with conditions which may exist, or which may be imposed upon, a specific type of business."

The City Council and the Planning Commission, he said, have no jurisdiction over the Plaza's action in entering into a lease arrangement with Pizza Time Theatre instead of renewing Kirby's lease, which expires in June.

"The El Cerrito Planning Commission has adopted certain guidelines for video arcades," Sinclair wrote. "Since Chuck E. Cheese has a video arcade as a major use, the proprietor must file an application for a use permit with the Planning Commission."

"The Commission," he continued, "may impose appropriate conditions to assure compliance with guidelines for this use; the conditions must be legally justifiable and must be supported by prudent land-use planning. The Planning Commission may reject the application only if the proposal cannot meet the conditions or otherwise does not comply with zoning requirements."

Gifted classes provoke protest

RUSD plan called elitist

By BARBARA ERICKSON

Richmond Unified program for gifted junior high school students has raised cries of protest from teachers and other staff members who call the project elitist.

In response to teacher complaints, the Board of the United School Districts of Richmond has asked the school board to hold a public hearing to reconsider its decision. The board will take up the issue during a meeting on Saturday, April 9.

But Rupley, assistant superintendent for secondary instruction, said staff will not implement the program as long as the board is still discussing it.

The program, adopted unanimously by the board March 16, creates special classes for bright students at all schools. Students at three other schools can transfer to participate in the program.

Under the plan, Down and Helms

Junior High students can register for classes at Adams Junior High, and Pinole Junior High students can enroll at Juan Crespi Junior High. Portola Junior High will have its own program.

The board created the program in response to a report showing a wide variation in the number of gifted students at each junior high site, from 7 percent at one school to 23 percent at another.

The schools with fewer students are not able to offer complete programs for the gifted, the report said, and it recommended forming clusters to bring more students together and provide more advanced courses.

Not only certified gifted students — those with high IQs — can enroll in the program. Any student may participate if a teacher or principal agrees and if the principal of the receiving school allows the change.

Ciarocchi said teachers at Downer and Helms began to question the program when they heard about the board decision. He wrote a letter to the board requesting a new hearing so the concerns could be aired.

"Most teachers were entirely unaware this particular action was imminent," he wrote. "Absolutely no provision was made to seek the opinion of the staffs at these schools."

He said the programs at the sending schools "could be decimated," and, "Much of the district could be resegregated. This could mark the beginning of the end of the comprehensive junior, and, by logical extension, senior high school program."

Rupley said, "He's probably right. It could have an effect on the comprehensive junior high school." She confirmed that teachers were not asked to vote on the program.

The Downer faculty has been the most concerned, she said.

Giving a party for a jazz great

Singer says happy birthday, Billie Holiday

By ROBERTA ALEXANDER

ABANY — Not just anybody would be interested in giving a birthday party for someone who is dead, but Barbara Lashley thinks she has a good reason.

The Berkeley-based jazz singer is hosting a birthday party for Billie Holiday on Thursday, April 7, at the Viking Lounge, 600 San Pablo Ave., Albany, from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Lashley, a folklorist turned singer, has a special interest in the music of the 20s and 30s. "Billie's a legend now, a folk hero, and I've always been drawn to her music," Lashley explained.

Accompanied by pianist Ray Skjelbred, she will perform early Billie Holiday works at the birthday party. Songs from the later period — "the hot years," Lashley called them — will be performed by Barbara Virgil and Brenda Boykin. Lashley also expects some musicians who performed with Billie Holiday to appear at the party.

"Billie has subtle approaches to phrases. I try not to imitate her, but I do find that I interpret some songs the way she did. I'll pick up her nuances," Lashley said.

Lashley is still in the process of developing her own style. She moved to the Bay Area in 1974 from Washington, D.C., earned a bachelor's degree in Afro-American studies from UC-Berkeley and began graduate work in folklore. Her unfinished thesis deals with Holiday's influence on other singers.

In 1978, she started singing in public. "No one could do it for me," she said with a little laugh. She joined Manny Funk's Casa Bonita Garden

E.C. pair convicted in stolen goods case

By JOHN ADAMS

EL CERRITO — The operators of an El Cerrito coin shop have been convicted by a Superior Court jury of dealing in stolen goods.

Michael and Linda Wright were found guilty March 24 of three felonies including conspiracy and attempting to receive stolen property. The Wrights will be sentenced May 10. Judge Edward Merrill. Wright did not know if he would appeal the verdict.

"It was a long trial and we're both exhausted," he said. "Let's leave it at that."

Belcher, the deputy district attorney who prosecuted the case, became interested in the case after a woman recognized a stolen silver on display in an El Cerrito coin shop.

When police investigated they found the silver piece to the Wrights' shop, Fort Knox Coin Shop, San Pablo Ave.

El Cerrito police Lt. William Root questioned Wright at his shop in November 1981, but Root testified Wright snatched the receipt for the silver from his hand and ordered him out of the store.

Belcher said the receipt indicated Wright bought the stolen silver piece from Ricky Floyd, who is now serving a burglary sentence.

The purchase occurred on the same day that Floyd had stolen the silver, Feb. 12, 1981.

Police then began an undercover investigation and Officer Michael Sapp sold several pieces of property to the Wrights, while professing them to be stolen.

Tapes of these sales were played to the jury during the trial.

Belcher said a tape of a Dec. 4, 1981 sale of four rings reported the Wrights telling Sapp to use a hammer to deface the jewelry so it could not be recognized.

Sapp did as the Wrights had advised and later sold the jewelry to them for $95, Belcher said.

When the Wrights were arrested, police found in their shop a ring stolen in an armed robbery in Oakland, the ring of a Redding murder victim, and other identifiable jewelry taken in other burglaries.

The Wrights filed a $1.6 million claim in June 1982 against the cities of El Cerrito and Richmond, alleging slander and harassment.

The cities denied these claims.

The attempt to save Kirby's

Sinclair went on to point out that any member of the public may appeal the Planning Commission decision to the City Council.

Sinclair suggested that further comments on the lease transfer should be addressed to Homart senior development director James McAdam, C&R Developers Inc. president George Riemer or Pizza Time real estate director Dave Wheeler.

The Planning Commission will review the application at next Wednesday's 8 p.m. meeting. Although scheduled for the City Hall council chambers, the meeting may be moved across the street to the Public Safety Building auditorium to accommodate what is expected to be an overflow turnout.

Nelson, who with her husband operates an Albany bookstore, feels 4,000 might be a modest estimate of the number of signatures obtained in her petition campaign.

"I had 300 (petitions) printed up originally, each with room for 25 names," she said, "and took some to Kirby's. Many of the people signed them and asked for copies to distribute themselves."

She explained her involvement in the issue by saying, "I like Kirby's. It's a pleasant place to go and it offers decent meals at reasonable prices. It has something for all age groups, and it's treated senior citizens especially well."

Kirby's owner David Viale said he is still optimistic that his business will be allowed to remain at the Plaza. "I'm willing to sit down with Ho-mart and renegotiate a new lease," he said. "I think there are better locations in the city for Chuck E. Cheese. But Homart would have to let them off the hook on the lease."

Sanford Paganucci, a spokesman for Assistant City Attorney William Bullard's office, said it would be premature to comment on the legal aspects of the lease transfer until the matter comes before the Planning Commission.

He noted, however, that "considerable discretion is invested in the Planning Commission with respect to the zoning ordinance and public welfare."

Paganucci indicated that the large public response in Kirby's behalf could carry some weight at the hearing.

Orchestra, and admits to being a little bemused by the whole experience.

"My first response when they asked me to sing was, 'you mean you want me to sing for money?'" she recalled.

Lashley went on to sing with other bands, and now works with a group called the Speakeasy Band, which performs at the Friday tea dances at the Shattuck Hotel in Berkeley. She also sings at weddings and parties.

In her performing, Lashley has noticed an increased interest in jazz. "I'm interested in audience taste, and people, particularly at private affairs, will ask for a little more this, a little more that."

Lashley lives with her two youngest children, a daughter, 16, who plays the bassoon with the Bay Area Wind Symphony, and a son, 15, who sings.

"I've met a lot of jazz musicians, and they've introduced me to others. I've learned so much, and I want to open people's minds to the way life was in the 30s and 40s," she said. "I like to get people excited."

Living with bowel cancer

"I know it's a cliché, but I was determined not to be doomed to an early death. I've been leading a very full and vigorous life," she said.

A small number—between 10 and 15 percent—of the people who contract the disease may be required to have a portion of their bowel and/or large intestine removed.

Naomi Peters, a Richmond resident who had such surgery because of bowel cancer, called it "a second lease on life."

"It's a very traumatic surgery. But if I hadn't had it I wouldn't be here today."

Peters, a member of a self-help group of people with similar experiences, the American Ostomy Association, noted that people who have had a portion of their bowel or intestine removed—ostomates—live perfectly normal lives.

"With the doctor's approval we (from the American Ostomy Association) visit new ostomates in the hospital," she said. "We show them that we have had the surgery and that we are back in the mainstream of life."

"You can do absolutely anything after the surgery, skiing, diving, absolutely anything."

"The problem in our society is that people just don't like to talk about their bowel habits. That's wrong. That's why they used to call ostomy the secret surgery," Peters said.

Peters emphasized that with early detection of bowel-related diseases, including bowel cancer, an ostomy can be avoided.

"I think if my malignant tumor had been discovered earlier I could have avoided the surgery. But that's the way things are. Really, I'm very fortunate."

"There are many myths surrounding bowel cancer," the Cancer Society's Warden said. "One, that the incidence is much higher in men than women, is false. They're about equal."

The Cancer Society estimates that 128,000 Americans (some 11,200 Californians) will discover that they have bowel cancer this year. Of these about 5,500 people in California, or 58,000 nationwide, will die of the disease.

The likelihood of contracting the disease increases after age 40. It is recommended that all people older than 40 have an annual digital rectal examination. Moreover, all people over 50 should have an annual stool test which checks for hidden blood.

"Because a bowel cancer grows slowly, it is possible to detect it long before symptoms appear," Warden said. "At that time it is the most curable."

Emily Warden

Bowel cancer's warning signals include bleeding, blood on or in the stool, constipation, diarrhea (or both alternately), an increase in anal gas and abdominal discomfort.

"Scientists are beginning to see a correlation between bowel cancer and diets which are low in fiber and high in red meat," Warden said. "Future studies may reveal a stronger connection."

Schools

Workshop on gifted pupil pla

Another Downer teacher, who did not want to be identified, said the staff objected to having the receiving schools all in the more affluent areas of the district.

"They've been pushed to the hills," she said, "and the flatlands schools were not considered." She said the board should look at the "racist, elitist and socio-economic" effects of the program.

"What is it that is so good at these schools that we aren't doing?" she asked. "I suspect it is nothing."

The middle and low achievers, she said, need the model of the brighter students to spur them on.

Board member Frank Calton said, "I don't mind listening to their concerns, but so far as I'm concerned we've made our decision on that."

He said he asked for a report on enrollment in the programs in May so the board can assess the effects on the sending schools and try to correct any problems before September.

Board president Katherine Lord said the board may decide to reconsider the issue, but "a lot will depend on how things go at the workshop. We will look at the whole question, then decide whether to go for a full public hearing."

Downer Principal Jack Akins said the effects on his program will depend on how many students leave for Adams. But, he added, "It probably deserves another look."

The board will consider redrawing boundaries, Lord said, possibly to create schools with more equitable distributions of gifted students.

"It doesn't hurt to talk things over," she said, "and I'm not against reopening it."

A Downer teacher, opposed to the plan, said, "We're hoping they'll wake up and change the decision."

JoAnn Thomas, a district psychologist, said staff members at sending schools were "very hurt and upset" and "afraid of what would happen to their program." She said they are afraid of losing classes that attract brighter students, like computer programming, advanced math and foreign languages.

School psychologists who the junior highs, she said, are because of the effect of these groups of students.

"What happens to the reputation, the whole school," Chiarocchi asked, "loses its high-achieving status."

Thomas said teachers at sending schools are also afraid they come a "dumping ground" for students with behavior and learning problems.

Charlye Jones, a Downer teacher, said the school serves high achieving students academic subjects. "We think we have a very good program," she said.

And although there have been reports that gifted students are in classes ranging from the advanced, she said, the truth. They are in the upper

Pony Baseball plans parents' meeting

El Cerrito Pony Baseball will meet Tuesday, April 5 at the Harding Park Club House at 7 p.m. to discuss some problems within the organization.

The meeting, open to the public, is one of two regular bi-monthly meetings for El Cerrito Pony Baseball, but the questions to be considered are not regular.

There have been questions raised by concerned parents and managers about the league's finances of last year and the possibility of an audit will be discussed. Also to be discussed is the suggestion by some parents that changes be made in the length of time that a board member can serve.

Dancing the day (& night) away

DENNIS PIMENTEL

EL CERRITO — Looking up at the clock, Brian Nichols

as he watches the seconds tick off before the hour of midnight.

"It was just now getting 11," says the 17-year-old El Cerrito High junior.

"I should have gone on for three hours or maybe for the whole weekend."

Most of Nichols' fellow participants, however, had not agreed with him as after dancing from midnight on Saturday, everyone was just going for a place to rest from weary legs.

The event was the Third Annual Narrow Door Dance-A-Thon held in the gym of St. John the Baptist School. Twenty-two couples tested their will and endurance to raise money for the San Antonio Youth Project in East Oakland.

"Two dance marathon veterans" of explained why they would put their bodies through such a grueling test. Elizabeth Santos and Michelle Woldemar, 17 and seniors at Presentation High, have danced in the past two narrow door marathons.

"We're doing it for a worthy cause," says Santos. "It's important to help people who can't help themselves."

"You can't really prepare for this," Woldemar says. "It's too insane. You just try to believe it's not happening."

Raising money with your feet

As the starting time approaches, Cathy De Lemos and Mark Busbin, youth ministers, get everyone organized and paired off. The music — which will range from Elvis Presley to Men at Work — begins the contestants start dancing. There's no looking back now until midnight.

For the first few dances, everyone is high-spirited. Many of the boys are able to dance and still throw a Nerf football around the gym. Around 12:30 p.m., the first slow dance is played, the football is put down and the dancers get more serious.

Dan Flores, 16, a junior at St. Marys High, walks in with a bag of shirts and states he will wear a different one each hour. By counting his shirts, you can count the passing hours.

Around 2 p.m., Marco Santos is standing alone on the sidelines on his first 10 minute break. He knows he may have a problem later on.

"I didn't get to bed until 5 o'clock this morning," the 14-year-old from Albany High says. "I couldn't get to sleep so I stayed up talking to my brother. I'll make it though."

One of the better dancers on the floor could also be described as a glutton for punishment.

"I really like to dance. I just go crazy out there," says Terry Koehe, 18, a senior at Pinole Valley. "But I'm kind of experienced at this. Two weeks ago, I danced at an 11-hour marathon at St. Joseph's in Pinole."

But what time is it now? Well, Flores has just changed into a dark green shirt after previously wearing beige, dark blue and bright red shirts. It must be 3 p.m.

Narrow Door is a 75-member youth group whose name is derived from a passage in the Bible.

"Narrow Door basically means walking the tightrope to adulthood," says De Lemos, 22, a student at Hayward State. "We try to direct them as far as their habits, mannerisms, things like that. Hopefully, they can make it across that tightrope."

"If we can be here and provide a service for the kids that keeps them off the streets — even if it's just one kid — it's worth it."

The past two marathons have both raised more than $1,000 and De Lemos — who has been a member and a leader in Narrow Door for six years — expects to achieve the same amount this year. The money will be donated to the San Antonio Youth Project, which provides schooling and housing for children from disadvantaged homes.

"These kids have parents who might be drug addicts or in jail," explains De Lemos. "The San Antonio Youth Project educates them and tells them 'you're special too.' They have an 80-percent success rate which, to me, is pretty amazing."

Back on the dance floor, the dancers aren't moving quite as quickly as before. Flores has changed from a white shirt to one with yellow stripes and now to a blue shirt with the words "Notre Dame" on it. It's now 6 p.m. — the halfway point — and time for dinner.

"I'm just going to take it easy the rest of the way," says John McGrath, 17, a junior at Salesian. "I'm not going to be so fancy on the fast dances."

"After six hours, you're pretty much used to it," says Susan Mank, 17, a junior at Presentation. "The first six are the worst because there is so much time to go and you start counting the hours."

Mank's partner happens to be Flores, who comments, "She doesn't know it yet but she's holding me up the rest of the way. But don't tell her!"

The sun has set and the dancers begin to prepare themselves for the two dance contests that will begin at 9 p.m. (Flores has now worn three button-down shirts over the past three hours and is now rummaging through his bag for a blue shirt with a picture of a tiger on it.)

Don Hemenway and Mary West win the '50s dance contest; Bernie Fitzpatrick and Theresa Bolla, and Peter Bolla and Rissa Britto tie for first in the New Wave competition.

The final hours were made up mostly of slow dances and, as has been traditional over the past two years, just before midnight, Jane DeMay, 19, of El Cerrito, sang Donna Summers' "The Last Dance." When she finished, the marathon was over. Everyone who started at noon lasted until midnight.

"I'm looking forward to a hot shower and a nice soft bed," says Paul Langlie, 16, a St. Mary's sophomore. "I'm glad we did it but I'm also glad it's over."

But one question remains. Why did Flores keep changing his shirt every hour?

"I just did it for fun," he says, wearing his final outfit, a green and white-rugby shirt. "Actually, I don't know why I did it."

Sue Gershenson of Albany plays the part of Miss Adelaide in the Cabaret Theatre of Alameda presentation of the musical fable, "Guys and Dolls." The show plays weekends, 8:30 p.m. through May 14. General admission is $4.50; students and senior citizens, $3.50. For tickets and group rate information call 521-9554.

Organ concert will honor church donor

A concert of organ music will be given on Sunday, April 10, at 4:30 p.m. in the Berkeley Ward Chapel of the 28 Church. The organist will be James L. Wallmann, of Albany, currently choir director of the Berkeley Ward.

Starting piano lessons at age 9, he later developed an interest in the organ, and studied with several Bay Area organists.

A graduate of Albany High School, he attended Stanford University, where he studied organ performance and church history. His concert will include works by Bach, Beethoven, Mendelssohn and Franck.

The concert is being given in honor of Will T. Hicken, a major benefactor of the recently enlarged pipe organ, which is celebrating its 100th year.

A reception will follow the concert. The Berkeley Ward Chapel is located at Walnut and Vine Streets in Berkeley. The concert is free.

AC Transit plans available at library

AC Transit's plans for bus service over the next five years will be available for public inspection and comment at Albany and El Cerrito Libraries and various other locations throughout the East Bay.

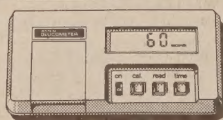

The forecasts in the District's "Five Year Plan Annual Update for FY 1984-88" are based on evaluations of existing bus service, and are heavily influenced by financial projections for the near future.

The 200-page report also clearly delineates existing bus service, now involving a fleet of more than 700 buses operating in some 580 square miles of Alameda and Contra Costa counties, and it projects equipment levels and system needs for future years.

A public meeting to discuss the plan has been scheduled by the AC Transit Board of Directors for Wednesday, April 27, in the BART Board Room, 800 Madison, Oakland, at 7:30 p.m.

H.S. proficiency test planned for May

Persons wishing to take the next California High School Proficiency Examination (CHSPE) must register by mail not later than April 25, according to the California State Department of Education.

The test itself will be held on May 21 at approximately 100 sites throughout the state. To pass the four-hour exam, a person must have a grasp of the basic skills at least equal to that of the average high school senior, the Department said.

That State Board of Education awards to those who pass a Certificate of Proficiency, which is equivalent by law to a high school diploma. Persons who are younger than 18 when they pass the exam, however, must have parent permission in order to leave school before regular graduation.

Open to all persons 16 or older, including adults, the exam costs $20 and is given only three times per year. Information bulletins, which include sample questions, a list of test sites and an application form and mailing envelope, are available at all high schools and most public library branches.

For more information contact the Office of Program Evaluation and Research at (916) 445-0297.

Astro-graph

If your birthday is today, April 3:
 Happy times and potentially beneficial associations are probable if you journey to distant shores in the year ahead. Should the opportunity arise to travel, don't hesitate to pack your bags.
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Second-rate suggestions from others today can be considerably enhanced by your imaginative touch. You have the ability to crystallize and refine the suggestions of others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Your point ventures today it will prove to your advantage to let others take the initiative. Don't disclose your game plan until you've heard them out.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 As an astute observer today and study how one may use the techniques you can later use to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Take direct action in your area of responsibility today, rather than wait for others to give you the green light. You're the pacesetter, not them.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 You have a commanding manner today, yet others may not find this affected or offensive. You'll only assume authority if it's for the benefit of all.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Focus your efforts and energies on things of a domestic nature today. Much can be done that will give you a real sense of achievement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 Don't trim the size of your hopes and expectations in order to appease small thinkers. What they can't do for you can easily manage.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Don't disclose your secret goals and ambitions today, nor vent to close friends. First, accomplish your aims. Talk later.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 You are asked to run a committee for your club or group today, by all means do so. You'll have lots of fun and do an excellent job.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 Compensation and recognition for something you've done recently is in the offing. It may not come today, but it's on its way.
 If your birthday is Monday, April 4:
 You may team up in a commercial venture this morning with someone you've previously known only socially. The catalyst which will bring you together will be an unusual product or unique service.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Success in your endeavors is likely today, especially if you act in accord with your highest moral standards. Be a practical idealist.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Charitable impulses should be acknowledged today, because they could take a unique turn. Instead of being the giver, you might end up being the recipient.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Evaluation may arise today where you could lend support to one of whom you're fond. Knowing you are there will give him the necessary confidence.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Substantial progress can be made today toward maintaining good relationships with coworkers. You'll be able to help them in other key ways.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 You have the ability today to defuse potentially explosive situations. Under your skillful direction all will become friends, no foes.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Only a few times in life is imagination and creative talent, they could also be money-makers. Don't file them away where they'll only gather dust.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 Your associates will be willing to do a little extra today. They'll sense that if the roles were reversed you'd do at least as much for them.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 Someone you're presently associated with who is fortunate in material affairs may have an interesting proposition for you today.

Boy Scouting is popular in East Bay

By GORDON RADDUE
What do Ronald Reagan, Johnny Carson, Walt Disney, Flip Wilson and Henry Fonda have in common?

All gained early motivation in life through membership in the Boy Scouts of America.
That the 73-year-old organization remains in peak health was obvious recently at the Mt. Diablo Council of the BSA's annual Scout-O-Rama at Richmond Memorial Auditorium.
"This is a way of letting people know that there's a lot more to the Boy Scouts than helping little old ladies across the street," enthused Judi Slater, publicist for the Council's Herms District, which takes in 10,000 scouts in West Contra Costa County, Albany and Berkeley.

The auditorium was bulging with people and exhibits reflecting the Scouts' wide range of interests and activities, from environmental concerns to computer science and historical research.

This year's event, sponsored by the Richmond Rotary Club, was the second in a row at the local auditorium, and the Scout-O-Rama may be here to stay, according to Herms District executive Gordon Rubard.
"It's a terrific site," said Rubard. "We're bursting at the seams with this group, but I don't know of a bigger place that's available."

Scouting, he said, is definitely on an upward swing.

"We had an 8 percent increase in membership in 1982," he said, but it was really greater than that because there were less kids of Scout age. Things are very positive now.

"There are 2,000 in there right now," he said, as people continued to pour into the auditorium with some three hours remaining of the event.

Cub Scout, Boys Scout and Explorer troops from the Council's five districts were well represented at nearly 100 booths offering fun, games and enlightenment on a plethora of topics.

Berkeley's Cub Pack 171, sponsored by McGee Avenue Baptist Church, provided an exhibit on "Black Inventors and Scientists." Among those whose works were documented were Daniel Hale Williams, the first successful heart surgeon; Charles Drew, prominent for his research on blood plasma and for creating the first blood banks; and George Washington Carver, who revolutionized the agriculture of the South by developing useful products from peanuts, sweet potatoes and pecans.

Cub Pack 86 of Pinole presented an informative energy exhibit, and the same city's BSA Troop 81 provided a Health & Physical Fitness booth that offered chin-up exercises for youngsters.

Outside the auditorium, BSA Troop 104 of El Cerrito had an extensive Canoeing & Boating exhibit, displaying a large variety of equipment and information on this outdoor activity which has proved highly popular with the group, according to senior patrol leader Lonny Addison.

If self-improvement is a major focus of Scout-O-Rama, the pure fun aspect isn't overlooked. Arm-wrestling, nail-driving and ring toss competition numerous other carnival-like amusements were to be found in the jammed auditorium.

"Scouting reaches into the lives of youth through fun-filled educational activities and the result is a positive influence on character, citizenship and personal fitness," said Slater.

"And one reason for its success today," she added, "is that, being self-supporting, it hasn't been affected by Proposition 13 cutbacks. It's still the best place for kids to go for good will, fun and self-improvement."

Church to show 'propaganda' film

KENSINGTON — The public is invited to a free showing of "If You Love This Planet," a film issued by the National Film Board of Canada which outlines the danger of nuclear warfare and has been labeled "propaganda" by the U.S. Justice Department.

The film has been purchased by the First Unitarian Church of Berkeley and will be shown on Tuesday, April 19 at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. Richard Bocke said "the film is one of three which the Justice Department has included on its propaganda list, requiring that the Candian producer submit lists of all those who rent or buy the film in the U.S. The Justice Department also requires that a disclaimer naming the film as propaganda be read before the movie starts."

The film features Dr. Helen Caldecott, an outspoken opponent of nuclear war, and has been nominated for an Academy Award.

Although there is no charge, a collection will be taken. A discussion will follow.

The Tuesday night showing will be preceded by a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m., to which the public is invited. Bring a dish to share for up to five times as many people as you bring.
